

INJURED IN FALL IN TURNTABLE PIT

Indianapolis Man Sustains Painful Injuries While Walking Towards Local Roundhouse.

RIB BROKEN, FACE WAS CUT

William Hurley, Accompanied by His Wife, Returned Home on Early Traction Car.

William Hurley, of Indianapolis, sustained painful injuries in an unusual accident early this morning while walking through the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad yards in this city. He was not acquainted with the surroundings and stepped into the turntable pit near the roundhouse. It is thought that he was rendered unconscious by the fall and lay in the bottom of the pit for fifteen or twenty minutes before he was found by Elmer Nelson, who is employed at the roundhouse during the night.

When Hurley was found it was seen that he was injured and the company's physician was notified. Hurley was taken to the doctor's office at 4 o'clock where an examination was made. The physician found that he had sustained a fractured rib on the right side, that his head and face were cut and bruised and that the thumb on his right hand was lacerated. The injuries were dressed and Hurley in company with Mrs. Hurley, returned to Indianapolis on an early morning traction car.

A dispatch from Indianapolis this afternoon to the Republican Office said that Hurley's head was bleeding considerably when he reached Indianapolis, but that his condition was not serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurley came to Seymour Wednesday afternoon and said they were on their way to Shoals where they intended to visit relatives for several days. They spent the night here at a boarding house and left a call for the early morning train west. They were here several weeks ago and spent the night here while enroute to Shoals.

According to persons who talked with Hurley after the accident, he and his wife went to the passenger

WINDOW DISPLAYS ARE ATTRACTIVE

Display Week of Newspaper Advertised Goods Being Observed By Seymour Merchants.

MOVEMENT IS INTERNATIONAL

Advertisers and Merchants Cooperate in Displaying Goods Advertised in Local Papers.

This is International Newspaper Window Display week and merchants all over the country are giving special attention to goods that are advertised by the manufacturers in local newspapers. Special window displays of nationally advertised goods are being shown, in a spirit of cooperation with the manufacturers who realize the value of local newspaper advertising.

Several Seymour merchants have taken up the idea and are showing attractive window displays of newspaper advertised products. In the window of Jackson & Kamman, the Second street jeweler, is a very interesting and novel display of the Conklin self-filling fountain pen, which is being advertised in the Republican. The display is a mechanical one and shows the simple operation by which the pen is filled. It has attracted the attention of most everyone who passes. In the window is also a display of the well known "Big Ben" alarm clocks.

In the clothing store windows are seen the well known makes of suits that have become popular all over the country by newspaper advertising. The Hart Schaffer and Marx and R. B. Fashion at Thomas Clo. Co., Strauss High Art Clothing at The Hub, Styleplus and Kuppenheimer's at Steinwedel's, Napperville Woolen Mill Clothing at the Modern Clo. Co., etc.

At the L. L. Bollinger and Model Grocery Stores are seen displays of Kirk's Flake White and Jap Rose soaps, two of the best selling soaps in the country—made so by the constant advertising of the manufacturer in local newspapers the country over. The Hoosier Cash Grocery shows a display of Gold Dust, Kirk's Soaps, and Royal and Calumet baking powders. Ergandbright's pharmacy shows an attractive display of newspaper advertised medicine and drug sundries.

The Union Hdw. Co. shows a large and handsome display of Garland stoves and ranges, whose advertising will be found in the Republican, and the Hoover Furniture Co. has an attractive window of Globe and Renown stoves and ranges, for which steady demands have been created by constant newspaper advertising.

Manufacturers are coming to realize, more and more, the advisability of newspaper advertising, and many large concerns that formerly advertised in magazines alone are either dividing their advertising appropriations between the magazines and newspapers, or, in some instances, concentrating their entire campaign in the local papers of the country.

Dealers find it much easier to sell advertised products, as the people have become acquainted with the article through seeing it constantly ad-

Art Lovers Praise Pictures Now Being Displayed Here

The Indiana University exhibit of pictures at the Shields High School is attracting the attention of art lovers of the city and many of them have called to inspect these works of art. The exhibit is open to the public each afternoon this week, including Saturday and a special invitation is extended for Sunday afternoon, which will be the last date of the exhibit.

The display is an unusually interesting and comprehensive collection of paintings, etchings and engravings and reproductions of masterpieces. Two of the water colors that have excited especial comment and commendation are the "Woodbine" and "Street Scene in Lisieux," both the work of Martin Mower, a prominent American painter. The sketch for a stained glass window, by John La-Forge, the German artist, has also been much admired.

In the engravings two wood block engravures, the work of Albert Durer, the German artist of the fifteenth century, and a steel engraving, by John Frederick Lewis, of England, are exceptionally good pieces of work and have received some careful inspection of all who have visited the display. Etchings, including an original work by Whistler, the premier of them all, and one by Joseph Turner, "Dumblane Abbey," are prominent in the exhibit.

An interesting study in the modern art of reproducing works of art is shown in the display of half tone and mezzo tint prints of some of the old wood and steel engravures. The originals and the modern day reproductions of them form a striking contrast in work, but a marked similarity in result.

The exhibit has proved most interesting and instructive to high school students, teachers, and all who have visited it, and it is expected that many will avail themselves of the opportunity of viewing this splendid exhibit of works of art during the remainder of the week and on Sunday afternoon.

Germans Reported to be Hard Pressed on Western Front—Austrians Losing.

By United Press.

Paris, October 14.—The Germans were hard pressed on their western front today. In Russia they were losing ground. The Austrians were losing fast in Galicia.

In Serbia the combined German and Austrian forces were progressing but very slowly. Strong hopes were felt that the Serbians could hold them back until re-enforced by the French and British from Salonika or from the Russians either by the way of the Black Sea or by way of Roumania.

Unofficial accounts said a Bulgarian division was nearly annihilated when it attempted a Serbian invasion. It was reported without verification that Italy had decided to join in the Balkans campaign.

Vienna, October 14.—Austro-German progress through Serbia continues today despite fierce resistance, the war office announced. The invaders have captured several more trenches south of Melgrade, it was reported, and the Serbian counter attacks in an effort to take important lost positions were repulsed heavily. INTEREST SHOWN IN "SEED CORN WEEK"

County Agent Cobb Thinks Jackson County May Wrest Honors from Johnson County.

VARIOUS MEETINGS HELD

School Children Attend Demonstrations and Show Skill in Selecting Seed.

"Jackson county can give Johnson county a close race this fall for championship corn," declared County Agent A. D. Cobb today in speaking of the yield and high quality of the local crop. Johnson county is regarded as the banner corn county of the state, but the agricultural agent believes that the farmers in this locality may wrest the honors from their neighbors to the north when the best of the crop is put on display.

County Agent Cobb has been holding meetings throughout the county this week, which is observed as "Seed Corn Week" and says that he has found some excellent yields and samples that are of high quality. This morning a meeting for the farmers of Jackson and Vernon townships was held on the O. M. Foster farm, in Vernon township, and was well attended. The pupils of the Uniontown school were invited to attend. A meeting of the Washington and Grassy Fork township farmers was scheduled for this afternoon with Ed Osterman and A. H. Mitschke as leaders.

These meetings are for practical instruction. County Agent Cobb in an informal talk gives the points to be noticed in selecting seed corn and then the farmers who are interested go out into a field and make selections. Considerable interest has been taken by the pupils of the various schools that have been given an opportunity to participate in the meetings. At Medora Wednesday the girls of that school won the contest. The boys also made selections but the judge held that the ears selected by the girls were superior to those picked out by the boys.

County Agent Cobb said that a premium of $1 had been offered for the best ear of corn that is entered in the county contest from each township. It is also being arranged to offer a larger amount for the best ear of corn in the county. The county agent believes that some excellent samples of the best corn in Jackson county will be entered as a result of this contest and it is probable that winning ears in a state or national contest may be entered. The county agent is very enthusiastic over the prospects for the corn crop this fall.

That the best of seed should be taken from the fields before the frosts come or before the corn is damaged by the changing weather is made clear by experts who are back of the "Seed Corn" movement in Indiana. In fact, that is the purpose of the special week that is being observed throughout the county. Friday, October 15, is generally observed.

COURT WANTS TO KNOW NEXT MOVE

Judge Eichhorn Desires to Know What Policy Prosecutor Will Take in Other Cases.

RUCKER ASKS FOR MORE TIME

Attorney Ryan Demands That Trial of Thomas Taggart be Held Immediately.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, October 14.—Special Judge Eichhorn forced to an issue today the policy that will be adopted by the prosecution of over one hundred men indicted with Mayor Joseph E. Bell on election corruption conspiracy charges. He called all interested into court and said that because of business at home he desired to know what the state would do. Prosecutor Rucker asked for ten days in which to decide upon the next move.

Attorney Ryan for the defense, demanded that a date for immediate trial of Thomas Taggart be set, "that the stain of the indictment be removed from him." Rucker said he was worn out by the Bell trial and asked more time. The court said it was not within his province to grant Ryan's request.

Mayor Bell was found not guilty yesterday on the fourth ballot. Three jurors voted for conviction on the first ballot.

There were indication today that the prosecution would dismiss the other cases.

The court called before him today Ernest Roeder and James (Bud) Gibson, two confessed conspirators, who testified for the state in the Bell trial.

President Wilson Comes to Agreement With Secretary of War Garrison Over Army Plans—Navy Program Has Not Been Completed.

Washington, Oct. 14.—According to a high Washington official, President Wilson is now in agreement with Secretary of War Garrison on the main feature of the secretary's plan for the reorganization of the army.

While starting with the principle that a large standing army is repugnant, Mr. Garrison has kept in mind the number of men which a first-class power would be able to land on the shores of the United States in a month, assuming that it gains control of the seas. His plan, which is the result of months of labor by the army experts, is based on this assumed situation.

Army experts are agreed that a power like Germany, if in control of the seas, could land at least 500,000 men on the Atlantic coast in one month. The war department's problem therefore, has been to arrange for the creation of a force adequate to hold such an enemy force until armies could be raised in this country by the voluntary system.

This plan provides for the creation of a reserve, increases the regular army and in the militia, improvements in the coast artillery defenses and in the quantities of reserve ammunition and equipment.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels will recommend a five-year continuing program of construction for the navy, but the details have not been worked out yet.

The president, it was said, is well pleased at the secretary's recommendation and gratified at the moderation of the plans that he has formulated.

The president today will confer with Representative Hay of Virginia, chairman of the house committee on military affairs. It is believed Mr. Wilson will attempt at this conference to enlist the support of Mr. Hay for the main features of the Garrison program. There has been considerable doubt as to whether Mr. Hay could be brought around to the advocacy of a plan such as the war department contemplates, but the administration is hopeful of receiving his affirmation.

Although details of Mr. Garrison's program have not been disclosed, his estimates, it is understood, will run over $200,000,000.

The regular army and the militia, and a system of reserves, the latter to be newly created, are counted on by the military authorities to meet the situation. Mr. Garrison recommends, therefore, increases in the regular army and in the militia and outlines a plan for building up a reserve force, all of which combined, it is estimated, will eventually give the required number of men.

The larger part of this force would come, of course, from the reserves. It is understood that Mr. Garrison's plan calls for the upbuilding of a reserve of 250,000 men. Details as to how this force is to be brought into being have not been disclosed, but it has been suggested that the plan contemplates a three-year service.

Secretary Garrison also proposes to give the militia an increased effective force of probably 150,000 men, making it subject to the control of the war department when occasion requires.

Secretary Garrison, it is said, would increase the regular army to 100,000 fighting men. It has now about 70,000 men, exclusive of soldiers not included in the actual fighting force.

It is understood that his plan will furnish a first line defense of about 550,000 or 600,000 men.

ORVILLE WRIGHT SELLS OUT

Disposes of Aeroplane Interests to an Eastern Syndicate.

New York, Oct. 14.—Orville Wright has sold his entire interest in the Wright Aeroplane company, at Dayton, O., to a syndicate consisting of William B. Thompson, Albert H. Wiggins, president of the Chase National bank of New York, and T. Frank Manville of the H. W. Johns-Manville company, according to an announcement made here.

The Wright company, which controls all of the patents on aeroplanes obtained by Orville Wright and his brother, the late Wilbur Wright, is capitalized at $1,000,000, of which $800,000 is outstanding. The deal, it is reported, involves about $1,500,000. It was also learned that Orville Wright, although disposing of his entire interest in the present company, will become consulting engineer of a new aeroplane company which the syndicate will form.

EIGHT KILLED IN AERIAL RAID

GREECE TO REMAIN NEUTRAL

Germans Open Up Heavy Artillery
Action on Western Front—French
Beat Off Assault by the Enemy
With Heavy Losses.

London, Oct. 14.—A Zeppelin squadron threw bombs into the heart of London for the second time within five weeks.

Eight persons were killed and thirty-four injured, according to the official casualty list given out by the official press bureau, which states expressly, however, "as far as reported." The official statement says the material damage done is smaller and none of the public buildings were damaged.

Greece apparently has renounced her treaty with Serbia on the grounds of a technicality and has made an agreement with Bulgaria. By the terms of this agreement Greece is to remain mobilized though still continuing friendly with Bulgaria.

The Austro-German armies invading Serbia, which crossed the Danube at Semendria and Ram, east of Belgrade, arrived at Pozarevac, ten miles south of the frontier.

Fresh advances were made south of Belgrade, where the village of Zaleznik and the heights to the east were taken. This is according to the official German statement.

Little is known of the character or progress of the Bulgarian invasion of Serbia. From all available news, however, it is apparent that the Bulgarians are attacking the Serbians at three points—two of them in the direction of Nish and one, which is farther north, in the direction of the Nish-Belgrade railway at Partschin. Crown Prince Boris has been detailed to duty at the general headquarters, and Prince Cyrille, second son of King Ferdinand to the staff of the second army.

Unofficial advices from Rome indicate that the Italians are about to send an expeditionary force to aid the Montenegrins in an invasion of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The attitude to be assumed by Italy, however, still is a matter of uncertainty, other reports from Rome declaring that the Italians will be unable to spare troops for an overseas expedition.

Fresh fighting of a strenuous character occurred along the Montenegrin border, says a Rome dispatch, the Austrians assuming the offensive. They attempted to cross the Drina, but are reported to have been repulsed with heavy losses.

An Athens dispatch says the Bulgarians have begun a fresh offensive against the Serbians at a point south of Zaitcar. The invaders were repulsed, according to the dispatch, and failed to take the Serbian positions for which they were striving.

On both the left and right wing of the battle line on the western theater of war, the Germans have been battling with their big guns, the French positions for the last twenty-four hours. The artillery action of the Germans, which is still in progress and which apparently is gaining more and more in intensity, strikingly resembles the plan of action of the allies which preceded their recent drive in the Champagne and around Arras.

The French war office admits that the Germans took parts of the trenches in the Givency forest, but adds that these had been completely destroyed by the big shells, which illustrates the intensity of the gun action.

At the other wing and at all other parts of the front, the French beat off the German assault, the communique asserts, adding that the attackers suffered severe losses.

TO BAR UNNEUTRAL SLOGANS

Government Will Exclude Them From the Mails.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Uncle Sam will not, knowingly, lend his aid to circulation of unneutral slogans bearing on the war in Europe. Postmaster General Burleson has issued an order to all postmasters to exclude from the mails as unmailable matter, all envelopes, postcards, etc., bearing stickers or otherwise having printed on them the words "got Strafe England," or a picture of the German escutcheon with a red blot labeled, "Lusitania" and inscribed "the blot that won't come off."

The postoffice department considers such matter as not only unneutral, but as calculated to reflect upon certain classes of persons.

EXPECT GREEK SHIP TO SAIL

Constantinos Had Been Recalled After Starting Once on Trip.

New York, Oct. 14.—The Greek line steamship Vasilefs Constantinos, recalled from sea by order of the Athens office of the company, may get away some time today, according to Midolin Ganalos, the agent of the line here. Mr. Ganalos said that, while he had received no message from Athens, he felt confident that the Constantinos would be on her way to Piraeus today. He said he had heard a report that the ship would discharge her 500 cabin and 2,000 steerage passengers, mostly Greek reservists, and load munitions for the Greek government, and he characterized it as without foundation. He said there were no munitions in the Constantinos cargo, which consisted almost wholly of flour.

It was said at the Greek consulate that the detention of the Constantinos was inexplicable to the staff here. It was thought that the holding of the ship did not indicate chance in the attitude of the Greek government.

TAKES NO STAND ON LOAN

New York Insurance Commissioner Comments on War Bonds.

Albany, Oct. 14.—Insurance companies reporting to the state insurance department must determine for themselves the advisability of investing their funds in the Anglo-French war loan, State Superintendent of Insurance J. S. Phillips declared. The question of the legality of this loan as an investment for insurance companies was presented to the state insurance department recently. Superintendent Phillips made it plain that he took no position as to the advisability or wisdom of insurance corporations investing in the loan.

"The character of the securities in which the funds of insurance corporations may be invested is prescribed in detail in the insurance law," said Mr. Phillips. "The law is plain that insurance companies organized in this state are limited in their investments to domestic securities, including the bonds of solvent corporations, organizations organized under the laws of any state of the United States."

CHAPTER I.

The leaves of poplar and oak hung still and limp; no ghost of breeze found its way down there to stir them into movement or whisper. Banks of rhododendron, breaking into a foam of bloom, gave the seeming of green and white capped waves arrested and solidified by some sudden paralysis of nature. Sound itself appeared dead, save for hushed minors that only accentuated the stillness of the Cumberland forest.

Now, as evening sent her warning with gathering shadows that began to lurk in the valleys, two mounted figures made no sound either, save when a hoof splashed on a slippery surface or saddle-leather creaked under the patient scrambling of their animals.

In front rode a battered mountaineer astride a rusty, brown mule.

The second figure came some yards behind, carefully following in the other's wake on a mule which limped. This second mule bore a woman, riding astride. She was a young woman, and if just now her slender shoulders also drooped a little, still even in their droop they hinted at a gallant grace of carriage.

The girl was very slender and, though conveyed by the drab missionary, "Good Anse" Talbott, riding astride a lame mount and accoutred with saddlebags and blanket-roll, her clothes were not of mountain calico, but of good fabric, skillfully tailored, and she carried her head erect.

Indubitably this was a "furriner," a woman from the other world of "down below." But who was she, and why had she come? As to that, word had gone ahead of her and been duly reported to the one man who knew things hereabout; who made it a point to know things, and whose name stood as a challenge to innovation in the mountains.

When at morning she had started out from the shack town at the end of the rails, "Bad Anse" Havey's informers had ridden not far behind her. Later they had pushed ahead and relayed their message to their chief.

She had often heard the name of Bad Anse Havey. The yellow press of the state, and even of the nation, was fond of using it. Whenever to the lawless mountains came a fresh upblazing of feudal hatred and blood was let, it was customary to say that the affair bore the earmarks of Bad Anse's excitement. Certain it was that in his own territory this man was overlord and dictator.

Like one of the untamable eagles that circled the windy crests of his mountains, he had watched with eyes that could gaze unblinking into the sun all men who came and went through the highlands where his aerie perched. Those whom he hated, unless they, too, were of the eagle breed, fierce and resourceful and strong of talon, could not remain there.

This slender young woman, astride a mule, was coming as the avowed outrider of a new order. She meant to make war on the whole fabric of illiteracy and squalid ignorance which lay entrenched here. Consequently her arrival would interest Bad Anse Havey.

Once, when they had stopped by a wayside mill to let their mules pant at the water trough, she had caught a scrap of conversation that was not meant for her ears; a scrap laughingly tossed from bearded lip to bearded lip among the hickory-shirted loiterers at the mill door.

"Reckon that thar's the fatchest-in woman what aims ter start a school over on the head of Tribulation," drawled one native. "I heard tell of her t'other day."

With a somewhat derisive laugh another had contributed:

"Mebby she hain't talked ter pro-jack over with Bad Anse yit. Hit mought be a right good idee fer that gal ter go on back down below, whar she b'longs at."

The girl was thinking of all this now as she rode in the wake of her silent escort.

In a moment of almost cringing despair she wished indeed that she were "back thar down below whar she b'longed at."

Then, almost fiercely, drawing back her aching shoulders, she cast her eyes about on the darkening scene and raised her voice in anxious inquiry: "How much farther do we have to go?"

The man riding ahead did not turn his face, but fung his answer apathetically backward over his shoulder: "We got to keep right on till we comes ter a dwellin'-house. I'm aimin' fer old man Fletch McNash's cabin a leetle ther rise of a mile from hyar. I 'low mebby he mought shelter us till mornin'."

"And if he doesn't?"

"Ef he doesn't, we've got ter ride on a spell further."

The girl closed her eyes for a moment and pressed her lip between her teeth.

At last a sudden turn in the road brought to view a wretched patch of bare clay, circled by a dilapidated paling fence, within which gloomed a squalid and unlighted cabin of logs. At sight of its desolation the girl's heart sank. A square hovel, windowless and obviously of one room, held up a wretched lean-to that sagged drunkenly against its end. The open door was merely a patch of greater darkness in the gray picture. Behind it loomed the mountain like a crouching Colossus.

At first she thought it an abandoned shack, but as they drew near the stile a dark object lazily rose, resolving itself into a small boy of perhaps eleven. He had been sitting hunched up there at gaze with his hands clasped around his thin knees.

As he came to his feet he revealed a thin stature swallowed up in a hickory shirt and an overample pair of butternut trousers that had evidently come down in honorable heritage from elder brethren. His small face wore a sharp, prematurely old expression as he stood staring up at the new arrivals and hitching at the single "galus" which supported the family breeches.

"Airy one o' ye folks got a chaw o' terbaccy?" he demanded tersely, then added in plaintive afternote: "I hain't had a chaw terday."

"Sonny," announced the colorless mountaineer with equal succinctness, "we want ter be took in. We're benighted."

"Ye mought ax Fletch," was the stolid reply, "only he hain't hyar. Hes airy one o' ye folks got a chaw o' terbaccy?"

"I don't chaw, ner drink, ner smoke," answered the horseman quietly, in the manner of one who teaches by precept. "I'm a preacher of ther Gawsel. Air ye Fletch's boy?"

"Huh-huh. Hain't that woman got no terbaccy nuther?"

Evidently, whatever other characteristics went into this youth's nature, he was admirably gifted with tenacity and singleness of purpose.

Over Her Stood the Woman Who Had Been Across the Stile.

Juanita Holland smiled as she shook her head and replied: "I'm a woman, and I don't use tobaccco."

"The hell ye don't!" The boy paused, then added scornfully. "My mammy chaws and smokes, too—but she don't straddle no hoss."

After that administration of rebuke he deigned once more to recognize the missionary's insistent queries, though he did so with a laconic impatience.

"I tell ye Fletch hain't hyar," The boy started disgustedly away, but paused in passing to jerk his head toward the house and added: "Ye mought ax thet woman ef ye've a mind ter."

The travelers raised their eyes and saw a second figure standing with hands on hips staring at them from the distance. It was the slovenly figure of a woman, clad in a colorless and shapeless skirt and an equally shapeless jacket, which hung unbelled about her thick waist. As she came slowly forward the girl began to take in other details. The woman was barefooted and walked with a shambling gait which made Juanita think of bears pacing their barred inclosures in a zoo. Her face was hard and unsmiling, and the wrinkles about her eyes were those of anxious and lean years, but the eyes themselves were not unkind. Her lips were tight clamped on the stem of a clay pipe.

"Evenin', ma'am," began the mountaineer. "I'm Good Anse Talbott. I reckon mebby ye've heard of me. This lady is Miss Holland from down below. I 'lowed Fletch mought let us tarry hyar till sunup."

"I reckon he mought ef he war hyar—though we don't foller taking in strangers," was the dubious reply, "—but he ain't hyar."

"Where air he at?"

"Don't know. Didn't ye see him down the road as ye rid along?"

"Wall, now—" drawled the missionary. "I hain't skeercedly as well acquainted hyarabouts as further up Tribulation. What manner o' lookin' man air he?"

"He don't look like nothin' much," replied his wife morosely. "He's jest an ornery-lookin' old man."

"Whither did he sot out ter go when he left hyar?"

The woman shook her head, then a grim flash of latent wrath broke in her eyes.

"I'll jest let ye hev the truth, stranger. Some triffin' fellers done sa'ntered past hyar with a jug of licker, an' thet fool Fletch hes jest done follered 'em off. Thet's all thar is to hit, an' he hain't got no license ter ack thetaway nuther. I reckon by now he's a-layin' drunk somewhere."

For a moment there was silence, through which drifted the distant tinkle of cowbells down the creek. Beyond the crests lingered only a lemon afterglow as relict of the dead day. The brown, colorless man astride his mule sat stupidly looking down at the brown, colorless woman across the stile. The waiting girl heard the preacher inquiring which way the master of the house had gone and surmising that "mebby he'd better set out in search of him;" the words seemed to come from a great distance, and her head swam giddily. Then, overcome with disgust and weariness, Juanita Holland saw the afterglow turn slowly to pale gray and then to black, shot through with orange spots. Then she grew suddenly indifferent to the situation, swayed in her saddle, and slipped limply to the ground.

The young woman who had come to conquer the mountains and carry a torch of enlightenment to their illiteracy had fainted from discouragement and weariness at the end of the first day's march.

The weariness which caused the fainting spell must have lengthened its duration, for when Juanita's lashes flickered upward again and her brain came gropingly back to consciousness she was no longer by the stile.

She was lying in the smothering softness of a feather bed. On her palate and tongue lingered an unfamiliar, sweetish taste, while through her veins she felt the coursing of a warm glow.

Over her stood the woman who had been across the stile when she fainted, her attitude anxiously watchful. In one hand she held a stone jug, and in the other a gourd dipper. So that accounted for the taste and the glow, and as Juanita took in the circumstance she heard the high, nasal voice, pitched none the less in a tone of kindly reassurance.

"Ye'll be s'pry as a squirrel in a leetle spell, honey. Don't fret yoreself none. Ye war jest plumb tuckered out an' ye swooned. I've been a rubbin' your hands an' a-pourin' a little white licker down yore throat. Don't worrit yoreself none. We're pore folks an' we hain't got much, but I reckon we kin make out ter enjoy ye somehow."

The four walls of the cabin might have been the rocky confines of a mountain cavern, so formlessly did they merge into the impalpable and sooty murk that hung between them, obliterating all remoter outline. Only things in a narrow circle grew visible, and at the center of this lighted area was the slender figure of a girl holding up a lard taper, its radius of light yellow and flickering.

As the mountain girl felt the eyes of the strange and, to her, wonderful woman from the great, unknown world on her, her own dark lashes fell timidly and the hand that held the taper trembled, while into her cheeks crept a carmine self-consciousness. Juanita, for her part, sensed in her veins a new and subtler glow than that which the moonshine whisky had quickened. The men and women of the hills had made her heartsick with their stolid and animal-like coarseness. Now she saw a slender figure in which the lines were yet transitory between the straightness of the child and the budding curves of womanhood.

It was to such children of the hills as this that Juanita Holland was to bring the new teachings. But even as she smiled the child—for she seemed to be only fifteen or sixteen—surrendered to her shyness and, thrusting the taper into her mother's hand, shrank out of sight in some shadowed corner of the place.

Then Juanita's eyes occupied themselves with what fragmentary details the faint light revealed. The barrel of a rifle caught the weak flare and glittered. The uncarpeted floor of rude puncheon slabs lay a thing of gaping cracks, and overhead there was a vague feeling of low rafters, from which hung strings of ancient and shriveled peppers and a few crinkled "hands" of "natural leaf."

"Dawn," commanded the woman, "take yore foot in your hand an' light out ter ther barn an' see ef ye kin find some aigs."

As Juanita watched the door she caught a glimpse of a slight figure that vanished with the same quick noiselessness with which a beaver slips into the water.

"I reckon ye kin jest lay thar a spell," added the woman, "whilst I goes out an' sees what victuals I kin skeer up."

Left alone, the girl from Philadelphia ran over the events of the day—events which seemed to smother her under a weight of squalor and foreboding.

At length from the road came loud shouts of drunken laughter, broken by the evident remonstrances of a companion who sought to enjoin quiet, and by these tokens the "furrin" woman knew that the lord of the squalid manor was returning, and that he was coming under convoy. She shrank from a meeting with Fletch McNash; but if she went out by the only door she knew she would have to confront him, so she lay still.

Fletch was deposited in one of the split-bottom chairs by the doorstep.

"I jest went over thar ter borry a hoe," he proclaimed, "an' I met up with some fellers and thar was all manner of free licker. They had white licker an' bottled-in-bond licker, an' none of hit didn't cost nothin'. Them fellers jest wouldn't hardly suffer me ter come away."

"An' whilst ye war a-soakin' up thet thar free licker them petarter sets was a-dryin' up waitin' ter be sot out," came the stern wifely reminder.

Between the strident voices came every now and then the softly modulated tones of the stranger whose words Juanita lost. Yet, somehow, whenever she heard them she felt soothed, and after each of these utterances the woman outside also spoke in softer tones.

Whoever the stranger was, he carried in his voice a reassuring quality, so that without having seen him the girl felt that in his presence there was an element of strength and safeguarding.

At last from one of the beds she heard a scuffling sound, and a moment later a childish form opened a door at the back of the cabin and slipped out into the darkness.

That revealed an avenue of escape. Juanita had not known that these windowless cabins are usually supplied with two doors, and that the one into which the wind does not drive the weather stands open for light on wintry days. Now she, too, rose noiselessly and went out of the close and musty room. It was quite dark out there and she could feel, rather than see, the densely foliaged side of the mountain that loomed upward at the back.

In her brooding she lost account of time. At last she heard a voice sing out from the stile:

"I'm Jim White, an' I'm a-comin' in."

A thick welcome from Fletch McNash followed, and then again silence settled.

After a while, as she sat there on the rock, with her chin disconsolately in her hand and her elbows on her knees, Juanita became conscious of footsteps and knew that someone was coming toward her. Then she caught the calm voice which had already impressed her—the voice of the stranger who had brought home the half-helpless householder.

"I reckon we're out of earshot now, I reckon we kin hev speech here; but heed your voice an' talk low."

In the face of such a preface the girl shrank back in fresh panic. She had no wish to overhear private conversations.

She huddled back against the rock and cast an anxious glance about her for a way to escape. Behind lay the mountain wall with its junglelike growth, where her feet would sound an alarm of rustling branches and disturbed deadwood. But the men were strolling near her, and to try to reach the house would require crossing their path.

Then the second shadow spoke, and its voice carried beside the nasal shrillness so common to the hills the tenseness of suppressed excitement.

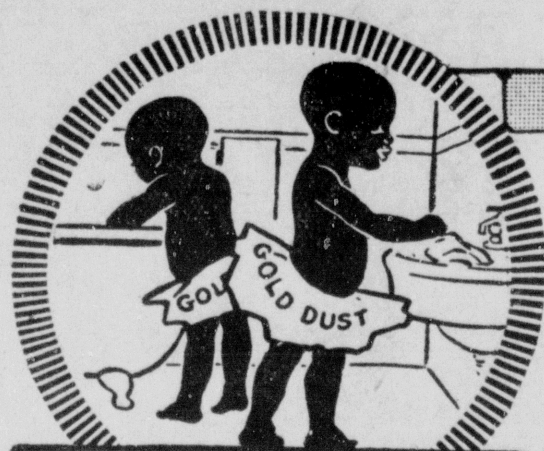

"Thar's liable ter be hell t'ernight." The girl thought that the quiet stranger laughed, though of that she could not be certain.

"I reckon ye mean concernin' Cal Douglas?"

"Thet's hit; when I rid outen Peril this afternoon ther jury hed done took ther case, an' everybody 'lowed they'd find a verdict afore sundown."

"I reckon"—the taller of the two men answered slowly, and into his softly modulated voice crept something of flinty finality—"I reckon I can tell ye what that verdict's goin' to be. Cal will come clear."

"Thet hain't ther pint," urged the messenger excitedly. "Thet hain't why I've rid over hyar like a bat outen hell ter cotch up with ye. I was

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE VOID

City Can Not Discriminate as to Public Gatherings.

Columbus, Ind., Oct. 13.—Judge Wickens, of the Bartholomew circuit court, held invalid that section of the new traffic ordinance here which prohibits religious and political meetings in Washington street, the principal business street of this city. The ruling came in the case of the city of Columbus against William Hobson, a minister. Hobson was arrested after he had held a religious service in Washington street, and his case was appealed from the city to circuit court.

The court's ruling in this case was that the city had no authority to discriminate against religious and political meetings on one side, and, on the other hand, to permit street carnivals and other gatherings in the same street.

PREPAREDNESS FOR WAR DISCUSSED AT CONFERENCE

Officials and Citizens Meet at Davenport, Ia., to Discuss Defenses of Country.

By United Press.
Davenport, Ia., October 14.—"In time of peace prepare for war!" This emblazoned sign greeted the most notable gathering of prominent men ever brought together in this city, at the opening today of the Mid-West Conference on Preparedness. United States senators, representatives, professional and business men from nine middle-western states were here, all keenly bent upon forwarding the movement for a greater efficiency of the country's defenses.

Henry D. Estabrook, of New York, whose recent address on Preparedness, delivered at Seattle, attracted nation-wide attention, is on the program with the United States Senator Cummins of Iowa, at a banquet to be held tonight. United States Senators Kenyon of Iowa, Sherman of Illinois, and Norris of Nebraska, will also deliver addresses.

From the principal cities of Illinois, Minnesota and Nebraska, will come well-known business and professional men. Invitations extended to congressional representatives in these states have been accepted.

During the two-day session, a number of luncheons and dinners will be held, at each of which the views of the prominent men and their ideas on improving the country's defenses will be heard. A different set of speakers will be heard at each function.

For Indigestion.

Never take pepsin and preparations containing pepsin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take the more you will have to take. What is needed is a tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets that will enable the stomach to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.

CHARACTER BUILDING IS MOST IMPORTANT

Building for Eternity Demands Eternal Foundation, Says Rev. Fred R. Davies.

"The Earth's Greatest Building," was the subject of an unusually forceful sermon by the Rev. Fred R. Davies at the Christian church last night. The evangelist is assisting in the "Fall Rally," which was planned by the pastor, the Rev. W. Paul Marsh.

"Earth's greatest things are not her lofty mountains, and mighty kingdoms; her most wonderful things are not palatial ships nor magnificent buildings, but the exalted lives of her people and their good characters."

The speaker emphasized the value of character. "Building for eternity demands an eternal foundation," he said. Morality, honesty and culture are all desired and necessary, but these qualities endure for a season while a character is for the eternal years.

There was one confession at the close of the sermon.

The subject for tonight's sermon is "The Impossible is Religion." It is announced that on Sunday afternoon a special service will be held and that the evangelist will speak on "An Old Love Story."

BIGGER CROPS IN 1916 IS IDEA BACK OF SEED CORN DAY

Farmers Throughout Indiana Are Urged to Select Seed for Next Year Before Frost.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, October 14.—With an eye to Seed Corn day, which comes tomorrow, county agents throughout Indiana were today actively engaged interesting farmers in the need of obtaining good seed corn. Backed by the recent proclamation of the governor, they formerly in the quality of seed corn.

"Bigger Crops in 1916" bids fair to become the slogan of the Indiana farmer. Urged in by the Indiana Corn Grower's association, the Indiana Grain Dealer's association, and the Indiana Banker's association, farmers are becoming interested in better farming methods.

Governor Ralston's proclamation pointed out that Indiana's corn is its greatest source of wealth, reaching the total valuation of more than $115,000,000 annually. The governor said Indiana's reputation for growing good quality corn is unsurpassed, and that it is important that the quality be maintained and bettered.

The Governor endorsed the theory of Professor Christie of Purdue that fully one million bushels of seed corn should be selected in Indiana before the heavy frosts. Christie believes Indiana's corn crop can be increased by 25,000,000 bushels by the proper selection of seed corn.

Whig High Tide.

Probably the largest and certainly the most picturesque campaign in Indiana history, marked the high tide of Whig success in the state. It began in 1835 with William Henry Harrison as its inspiration and ended in 1840 in elevating him to the presidency. Wild enthusiasm and mad fever, featured by barbecues and parades in honor of the heroes of Tippecanoe, grew to a veritable "delirium of sentiment." The Harrison presidential wave carried Indiana for him by more than 13,000 and elected the Whig candidate for Governor, Samuel Biggar, by more than 9,000 plurality.

NEW WANTS MEAN PROGRESS

As we go forward our visions enlarge, our tastes advance, we have more wants to fill.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1915.

The Scott County Journal, one of the leading Democratic Weeklies in Indiana, of which Sam Wells is the editor, has the following to say about the state finances:

We notice in many papers the fact that "Indiana does not owe a dollar." That is indeed gratifying, but it was paid by raising the tax rate sky high. It is easy enough to pay your debts if you have the money, but if you "rob Peter to pay Paul," it is only shifting the debt. Taxes are outrageously high, and have been for years and are getting worse. Now that the people have paid the state debt by a high assessment let the rate be lowered. If this is not done the next legislature will create a lot of new offices to eat up the surplus.

station and he decided to walk over to the roundhouse to see if the train was on time. It was while he was walking towards the roundhouse that he fell into the pit. The bottom of the pit is bricked.

After Hurley's injuries were dressed he decided to return home. It is said that he was dazed for a time by the fall. The call for the physician was sent in at 4 o'clock, according to the roundhouse employees, and it is thought that the accident must have occurred about 3:40 or 3:45 o'clock. When Hurley went to the roundhouse he left his wife at the passenger station where she was later notified of the accident.

FANS ARE NOW PLAYING IT OVER

Local Base Ball Fans Followed Progress of World's Series on Republican Bulletin Board.

INTEREST IN GAMES INTENSE

Phillies Were Favorites With Seymour Fans, But Boston Backers Are Feeling Better Today.

There has been a noticeable calmness in front of the Republican office this afternoon. Our friends, the thirty-third degree, dyed in the wool base ball fans, are conspicuous by their absence. They have returned to their several vocations, or jobs, as the case may be, some happy and others trying to figure out how they happened to "dope it out" wrong.

For, as is pretty generally known by this time, the world's series is over. When a certain Mr. Hooper, eminent Bostonian, swung his life-sized hickory war club late yesterday afternoon in the ninth inning of the fifth game with the Phillies, and sent the white sphere sailing out into the hazy distances of the late October sunshine, he not only snuffed out the last hope of Quakertown fans and brought himself a front seat in the hero row, but he spoiled another, and probably two days' more of exciting, nerve wrecking tension for base ball fans the country over. And, incidentally, Mr. Hooper, aided and abetted by his neighbor gardener, Mr. Lewis, is responsible for the absence of the crowd in front of the Republican this afternoon.

For the past five days the Republican has been the mecca for base ball fans who have been following the world's championship games—and judging from the crowd that watched the bulletin each afternoon, and the hundreds of telephone calls received daily, there have been quite a few of them. The direct service furnished by the United Press enabled the Republican to keep up with the games play by play and the score was posted by innings and the plays that made the scores announced to the crowd a few moments after they had been made on the Philadelphia and Boston diamonds. The Republican furnished its readers with a detailed account of the games, play by play, shortly after the final out was made.

The fans here that watched the progress of the series were mostly Philadelphia sympathizers. They had had little chance to enjoy the proceedings since last Friday, when Moran's team won the opener, but yesterday they had a lovely time—for seven and one half innings. There were broad smiles when the first two runs were marked up for the Phillies in the first round, and there were loud cheers when, after Boston had added one each in the second and third, it was announced that Fred Luderus had looped a circuit smash over the right field wall and that Niehoff had scored on his hit and Hoopers wild throw to catch him at third. Then came three cipher innings, and then the eighth, and when Lewis' homer sent Del Gainor around in front of him to the counting station and tied the score, there was a subdued silence, broken only by a few "I told you so's" from the Boston sympathizers. There was still a chance—but when in the ninth, Hooper's second four ply smash was announced to the crowd, they realized it was all over. Of course they stayed, hoping that perhaps the count might be evened, but when the last play of the game, Killefer's out, Scott to Gainor, was announced, there was a concerted murmur of "its all over now," and the fans dispersed and will now have the entire winter to tell just how they figured it out, or just how it was they thought the Phillies could win, and discuss the relative pitching ability of Grover Alexander and Leonard, Foster, Shore, et al.

But they'll be back next October—the same crowd—for there's absolutely no cure for the real baseball fanatic. Now for the hot stove league season.

CALIFORNIA KEEL IS LAID

Battleship Will Be First to Be Electrically Propelled.
New York, Oct. 14.—The keel of the first electrically propelled battleship in the world was laid this morning at the Brooklyn navy yard. This ship, the California, is the first of three new dreadnoughts. Secretary Daniels and other navy officials will be present at the ceremony.

The electrical equipment to be used in the California was advocated by Admiral R. S. Griffin, engineer in chief of the navy. The new battleship will make 21 knots. The two other dreadnoughts of her class, which, however, will not be electrically propelled, will be the Idaho and the Mississippi. All three will be finished in 1917.

The ceremony began at 12:15. Guests and visitors were admitted within the hull after 11 o'clock. The first bolts will be fastened in place by Commander George H. Rock, chief construction officer of the yard. A horseshoe will be nailed to the head beam of the vessel for luck.

Soldiers Not Needed.
Charleston, S. C., Oct. 14.—With one box protested, Tristram T. Hyde has the lead of 109 over John P. Grace, incumbent, for mayor in the Democratic municipal primaries. If the protested box is counted Hyde's majority will be reduced to twenty. Local militia and deputies were held in readiness, but were not needed, perfect order prevailing.

WHY YOU SHOULD WEAR DR. REED'S Cushion Shoes

Comfort Your feet rest upon a flexible cushion which conforms to and fills every curve of your feet, and distributes the weight of your body evenly the full length and width of the bottoms of your feet, relieving the extreme pressure on your heel, ankle and toe joints, and prevents any jar from walking.

Fit Dr. Reed shoes are scientifically constructed, the foot conforming cushion holds your feet as in a mold, relieving callouses, corns, bunions and the hot burning sensation of your feet caused by the ordinary hard-soled shoes.

Health The soft fibre insole holds your feet in place and distributes the weight of your body evenly from heel to toe, and permits a free circulation of your blood through the bottoms of your feet, relieves excessive perspiration and restores them to a natural, healthy condition. The fibre insole is an absolute non-conductor of heat and cold and does not allow the dampness to penetrate through the soles, preventing rheumatism, pneumonia and other diseases caused by your feet not being sufficiently protected.

Every man who wears them is a walking advertisement. We carry three lasts, all widths and sizes, at $5.00 the pair. We are the sole agents in Jackson County.

MINSTREL TO BE GIVEN BY LOCAL BAND PROGRESSING

First Practice Held Wednesday Night and a Creditable Perfor- mance is Assured.

The first rehearsal of the Seymour Concert Band for the minstrel that will be given during the first of No- vember was held last night. Instruc- tor Adolph Steinwedel is more than pleased with the interest shown and the progress that has been made in preparation for this event. The minstrel promises to be one of the best home talents ever presented in Seymour and a good crowd is as- sured. Those who will assist in the minstrel will practice regularly until the date of the performance.

The Band was recently organized and now has about fifty members. The first appearance in public was made recently at the park when a splendid afternoon program was given. For many of the musicians this is their first experience in band work, but they are showing com- mendable interest and one of the best musical organizations in this part of the state is assured. The proceeds from the minstrel will be used to pay for uniforms.

JAMES HENRY SENTENCED TO INDIANA STATE PRISON

Columbus Man Found Guilty of Man- slaughter for Killing of Thomas O'Haver.

The jury in the case of the state of Indiana against James Henry, of Columbus, which was on trial in the Bartholomew circuit court, today re- turned a verdict finding the defend- ant guilty of voluntary manslaughter and sentencing him from two to twenty-one years in the state prison. He was charged with the murder of Thomas O'Haver, whom he found in company with his wife. The jury took the case about 8 o'clock Wed- nesday night and deliberated more than twelve hours.

Henry who is the husband of a former local woman, took the stand in his own behalf and pleaded self- defense. He said he had tried to reform his wife and on cross exam- ination the state tried to show that he had given liquor to her in excess and it was while she was in an intox- icated condition that they were mar- ried. The indictment against Henry charged him with murder in the first degree.

INTEREST SHOWN IN "SEED CORN WEEK"

served throughout the state as "Seed Corn Day."

County Agent Cobb said that in traveling around over the county in the interest of the better corn move- ment he had found much corn that would make a creditable showing at the proposed agricultural display that is being planned here during the latter part of November. He said that the growers were interested in showing their corn this year and that many of them believed they had winning entries. Mr. Cobb said that an agricultural display should not be attempted here before the latter part of November, if a specialty was to be made of corn, as the growers would not be in a position to show the best of their crop before that time.

County Agent Cobb believes that the prospects for Jackson county becoming a banner corn county in Indiana are very bright and says that that time can be hastened by co-operation among the growers in taking greater care in selecting the seed so that a uniform type of corn will be produced.

Infant Improving.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Baurley, of Hamilton town- ship, who was in a serious condition for several days as the result of a dose of carbolic acid, administered, presumably with murderous intent by someone, is much improved today and physicians say that the baby's chances of recovering are encour- aging.

History of Success Temple No. 310

(By Mrs. Laura Cox.)

Success Temple No. 310 was instituted April 17, 1905, by Mrs. Fannie Spence, of New Albany, Ind., D. D. G. C., assisted by Lucullus Temple No. 42, of Brownstown, with a charter of forty-seven ladies and twenty-eight gentlemen. The work was put on in a very impressive manner by the officers. The Brownstown ladies were entertained at the Lynn House. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. C. E. T. Dobbins for courtesies extended the ladies. Mrs. Laura St. Clair, of Waterloo, Ind., Grand Chief, and Grand Senior Lizzie Coleman, of Bedford, Ind., were present.

The session was called to order at 1:30 p. m., and the election and installation of officers followed:

M. E. C.—Mrs. Lora Wheaton.
E. S.—Mrs. Laura Cox.
E. J.—Mrs. Ida Barick.
M. of T.—Miss Maggie Heuser.
M. of R. & C.—Miss Clara Massman.

M. of F.—Mrs. Belle Gates.
P. of T.—Mrs. Martha Heins.
O. G.—Mrs. Pearl DeGolyer.
P. C.—Mrs. Lura Baird.
Musician—Miss Anna Massman.
Trustees—Emma Russell for eighteen months; Lura Baird for twelve months; Minnie Eudaly for six months.

Committee on By-Laws—Emma Russell, Anna Massman and Rose Barkman.
Drill Master—W. G. Geile.
Meeting adjourned until 7:30 p. m.
Initiatory work by Lucullus Temple. Miss Amanda Baird and Mr. Earl Cox were initiated. Refreshments were served in the banquet hall. Temple closed in due form.

At the first meeting held April 24, a letter from Mr. T. S. Blish enclosing a donation of $17.69 for robes for the drill team was accepted and appreciated very much, also a letter of welcome from Castle Hall, Hermon Lodge No. 44 K. of P. to the officers and members of Success Temple No. 310, Pythian Sisters: "Be it resolved, That Hermon Lodge No. 44 extend to Success Temple a hearty welcome to our midst believing that your coming will be of great benefit to us as well as an honor. You will always find us ready to protect and defend; therefore let us work hand in hand together as brothers and sisters. You will ever remember our three principles, Friendship, Charity and Benevolence. May you ever be prosperous is our wish.

Committee,
George T. Bartlett,
W. G. Geile.

November 27, 1905, we had the pleasure of initiating the midgets, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. W. Winner, who were highly recommended to us from their home in Monticello, Iowa. These little people are well educated. Mrs. Winner plays the piano sings, writes and composes a beautiful letter. I have several that I appreciate very much. They are in good standing in the Temple, sending their dues regularly.

Seymour has entertained the District Convention twice, April 15, 1907, and April 1, 1914.

Success Temple also has had the honor of two District Grand Chiefs, Mrs. Laura Cox serving two years, the first year under Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman Kutch, Grand Chief, of Bedford, principal of the Bedford high school, who also wrote a recent history of the Pigeon Roost Massacre in Scott county, on Sept. 3, 1812. Mrs. Cox instituted one Pythian Sister Temple at Medora with a charter of seventy-five. She served the second year under Mrs. Luna King, Grand Chief of Red Key.

Miss Myrtle Morton served one year under Mrs. Ada White.

August 24, 1910, the officers of Success Temple were invited to put on the initiatory work, when Uniontown Temple was instituted with a large charter.

The District Deputies have to attend the school of instruction at the close of Grand Temple each year at Indianapolis.

April 7, 1913, "The Old Maids' Convention," a play written by Josie M. Nelson, Supreme Chief, of Marion, was given by the members of Success Temple in Castle Hall, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. The play netted $50.47, which was turned over to the flood sufferers of Medora.

Grand Temple reported Success Temple of Seymour as giving the largest silver offering to the Orphans Home of any Temple in the state. We have had several joint installations with the K. of P. Brothers, who have been very loyal to the Pythian Sisters. The beautiful Castle Hall is opened the first and third Monday evening for our use free. We comfort the distressed, send flowers to the sick and assist the needy.

Success Temple is in a very prosperous condition socially and financially. We have seventy-six Knights and ninety-three Sisters. With love for one another and the Order of Pythian Sisters, let us labor as a unit for the advancement of our cause. We are all component parts of one symmetrical whole.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS BEFORE TUESDAY CLUB

The following address was given by Mrs. Millison Groub, president of the Seymour Tuesday Club before the Club at its first meeting for the winter season:

Quoting from our poet of Brown county, "Abe Martin," as James Whitecomb Riley called him a "Joker of Facts," through one of his woman characters, she said, "she would rather be right than president of a woman's club," and I think we all know just what it means for a woman to be right. It gives her that "I told you so" feeling that is so dear to all our hearts, but as I feel at present I know that I would adore "being wrong" all the rest of my time than trying to fill the office, for when I read over the splendid program for the year and found the first meeting opened with an address and our subject was "Woman, Her Aspirations and Achievements." I felt it was of rather colossal proportions for me to try to speak of. It would be taking too much of our time for me to try to tell you what the women of today have done and are doing in this great world wide movement that we hear and read so much about. But one thing seems to me worth considering when we realize that two generations ago it was scarcely spoken of, and today woman coming out into the broader and higher education has entirely changed her relations towards society. That old metaphor of the "ivy clinging about the oak" has almost passed away, and charm, genius, talent and wealth is the vision of the new women of the world. Women's clubs have been established all over this country and in church work, settlement work and charity, they are using all their efforts and energy. Pushing these wonderful reforms as they are doing have prepared women for the ballot. Even those absolutely opposed to it. This great horrible war has caused the nations to employ women in places and positions formerly monopolized by men a nurse or home doctor, her social affairs, anything pertaining to her aims and mission in life, would be of interest to us and the readers of this page.

I, myself, would enjoy this very much, for while it is helpful in advancing new ideas it also sharpens our intelligence to write the things we know. There is no limit to the knowledge thus gained, as well as the benefit of the experience gained through the correct use of the English language.

We may learn to express ourselves correctly and tell what we know without hesitation or lack of words, which in itself, is a joy and a comfort. It would be a pleasure to any of us to know that were we suddenly thrown in the company of any person of intelligence we would be able to discuss all present day issues, not only of current events, or things pertaining to our government or municipal rule, but all the issues pertaining to womankind.

Fad for Furs and Feathers

All sorts of furs and all sorts of feathers are to be found in neckwear and millinery for the coming winter. Fur as a trimming for fabrics and in neckwear, and fur sets, appears to be better liked than in all-fur garments. Matched sets of three pieces, showing muff, neckpiece and hat trimming of the same fur, or all of them made up of some fur-trimmed fabric, are among the most elegant and practical offerings of the new season.

The neckpiece and fur-trimmed turban at the right of the picture given here recommend themselves to maid and matron alike. As shown, the high pompon and soft collar are made of white angora, but the same idea is carried out in other furs such as martin and fox, or any of the long-haired skins.

and their fitness and ability will have a wonderful effect on their future. Nothing has been more dramatic since the beginning of this great world of ours than the gathering of the women at The Hague for the Peace Conference, and I say dramatic because they had so much faith in their influence as women and they tell us how as they pleaded for peace the little soldier boys marched by their windows on their way to war and death. A nation is no better and no wiser than its women, and Tennyson said, "Give her the glory of going on and still to be," and in the distant future we hope to see man and woman walking side by side down through the ages of their toil and labor as "Olive Schreiner" says, "Almost a new Garden of Eden made beautiful by comradeship.

Reader Makes Suggestions For the Woman's Page

(By Lola A. Pinchon.)

Through the kindness of our editor women are given a page in his paper to use in exchanging ideas, household hints, fashion notes, house-cleaning and labor-saving schemes, and to discuss anything pertaining to ourselves or our work that may be of interest or benefit to others. In short, this page is given us to use as we please.

I think that an essay, poem, or an interesting write-up on some subject pertaining to money-making, home making, home rule, woman's mission in the world, her ability as

The turban has a high crown covered with white satin and a smartly rolling brim of black velvet. The big fur pompon is its only trimming.

At the left a toque shape entirely covered with hackle feathers in black and Belgian blue is made to conform to the shape of the head. At the left side a fan, made of wide blue velvet ribbon, set together in three rows, gives the required height. The feathers fall with their own natural grace about the head at the sides and back, and the toque is exceptionally becoming.

Both these hats may be worn by women of middle age, and the all-feather turban is designed for them. The richness of the darker furs, used as shown in the picture, make the high-crowned turban trimmed with them a distinctly good model for the matron.

her own things of interest the same as man has his, and, while she may have little time to spend on accomplishments, it is up to her to at least find herself and give her best to those around her.

I would suggest that we accept this page so freely given us and make use of it. Little stories of achievement, or experiences that teach a lesson, told in the best manner possible, will be read and appreciated by the Republican's woman's-page readers. Let us hear from you.

In Hemming Circular Edges.

First, be careful not to stretch the edges in cutting out the circle. One seamstress, who has made many circular centerpieces and doilies, describes a circle of the desired size upon the linen with a pencil; then, before putting the scissors into the fabric, run the circle through the sewing machine, making a row of basting stitches in the course of the penciled outline. This done, she proceeds to cut the pattern and finds that the outlined row of stitching keeps the linen in shape. Next, she bastes a hem of the right width and hems it in the usual way. Another hint may not be unwelcome: Before she sews on the lace she dampens the edge to be sewed upon the linen and lets it dry. This shrinks the lace slightly and prevents it from puckering in the wash. If you have no sewing machine you may trace the penciled circle with fine cotton and a cambric needle carefully, and cut the linen outside of the basting.

MARGARET MASON'S FASHION LETTER

(Written for the United Press.)

Quite the most reminiscent of dear old granny's youth is a model jacket suit of black and red wool plaid. It has a short full skirt and little short full jacket which once removed reveals to startled modern eyes a little low necked waist of the plaid absolutely sleeveless save for tiny caplike puffs of the plaid over each shoulder. With this sleeveless daytime gown are worn quaint kid gloves reaching midway of the forearm and laced up the side.

These side-laced gloves are quite the newest feature at hand and are worn with every sort of daytime toilette. Black lace mitts are also permitted with dressy afternoon frocks. Though the gloves are laced they aren't lace you understand, whereas the mitts are not laced but are lace.

The little top hats worn over one eye, the flowing window curtain veils, the little round muffs and rippling shoulder capes of fur, the extra high buttoned boots for day wear and the high ribbon laced cothurns for evening all, all are old stuff lifted from the heyday of our grand-dames' youth.

Quite the only thing we seem to have overlooked in our wholesale copying is of course what would have profited us the most—meaning of course her lovely old-world tact and courtesy.

Around the Home

To get a quick breakfast, put coffee on in cold water in a covered granite pan in the oven. Place potatoes boiled day before in jackets also in the oven. Bacon or chops in a covered pan will be done by the time you are dressed. Orange juice prepared and on ice the night before. Use lemon squeezer to remove orange juice. Any or all of these hints carried out according to the breakfast desired are a great help where there are several to prepare for.

White velveteen, and most colored ones, too, will wash beautifully. Just knead and squeeze quickly in a warm—not hot—lather, rinse in tepid, then cold water. Wring carefully and shake well. While still damp iron on the wrong side on a thick felt or blanket covered with a clean sheet.

For a burn apply equal parts of white of egg and olive oil mixed together, then cover with a piece of old linen; if applied at once no blister will form. Or apply at once cooking soda, then cover with cloth and keep same wet with cold water. This takes out the pain and prevents blistering.

To keep a primula in healthy condition, water around the edge of the pot, never directly on the roots. This came from a horticulturalist, and the advice carried out restored a once beautiful but dying plant to its former thrifty condition.

Iron rust may be removed from delicate fabrics by covering spot thickly with cream of tartar, then twisting cloth to keep cream of tartar over spot. Put in a pan of cold water and heat water gradually to a boiling point.

Before using a new iron kettle grease inside and outside and let stand forty-eight hours; then wash in hot water in which a large lump of cooking soda has been dissolved.

Black stockings should never be washed in water which has been used for other flannels, or they will be covered with shreds and "bits".

Rub lard on grass stains, wash in warm suds and the stains disappear.

Having decided to engage in the wholesale business it becomes necessary for me to close out my entire Stock and Fixtures known as the PHILADELPHIA BARGAIN STORE.

This Stock consists of MEN'S, YOUNG MEN'S, BOYS' and CHILDREN'S suits, overcoats, raincoats, trousers, hats and caps, underwear, sweaters, gloves, neckwear, suspenders, belts, hosiery, collars, work-coats, over-alls, waists and hunting coats.

In anticipation of a Big Fall and Winter business we have purchased heavy stocks for this store. These purchases have been coming in now for some time. They must move and move quickly, therefore, right at the beginning of the fall season you are offered the opportunity to make your fall purchases at Special Going out of Business Sale Prices.

There will be something doing Here all the time until the entire stock and fixtures are closed out. STOCKS ARE MUCH HEAVIER than usual and astonishing price cutting has been resorted to in order to move them quickly.

Rev. Philip Wambsgaus, Well Known in Church and Hospital Work, to Address Local Lutherans.

Rev. Philip Wambsgaus, of Fort Wayne, will lecture Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Lutheran Club building, on the different institutions of the Lutheran church in this synod. Rev. Wambsgaus is a prominent Fort Wayne minister, an excellent speaker, and is president of the Fort Wayne Hospital Board. He will use stereopticon views of the various hospitals, schools and other institutions of the church, and his address is one that will be most interesting to all members and friends of the church, who are invited to hear him. The local church considers itself very fortunate in securing Rev. Wambsgaus, as he fills only a few speaking engagements. Wednesday evening he spoke at Indianapolis and tonight he is at Columbus.

OLD MAGAZINES NEEDED

We find the files of periodicals at the Public Library are insufficient to meet the demand constantly made upon them. In a small library magazines are used in the place of books, for they contain valuable articles upon subjects which are not found in its books. For example, take such subjects as the "Japanese problem in California," "Western art and artists," and "Juvenile protection," which are found on this winter's program of one of the women's clubs of Seymour. As every one knows, there is plenty of information upon these topics in the periodicals, but as yet, the Library cannot furnish books upon these subjects.

Magazines are also valuable in our work with the school children. They are sent every day to the Library to look up in books and magazines interesting information in addition to what is found in their text-books.

Another reason for giving your magazines to the Library is that there they will have a much wider use, being accessible to the thousands of families in the township, instead of just one.

The Librarian is visiting every school in the city this week. She has talked the matter over with the children and they are eagerly gathering for the Library all the discarded magazines they can find. They bring them to their school rooms, and next week the magazines will be gathered from all the school buildings in the city and brought to the Library.

Now mothers, we want your co-operation. It is house-cleaning time, and we know every housekeeper has found in her overhauling and overturning scores of magazines which she will be rejoiced to get rid of, and to put where they will be of further use. Let the children have them.

FORGETTING

A large percentage of people use their memories to "forget with."

Is your business or your product one that you can chance having put out of mind?

Don't you need the reminder of newspaper advertising?

Don't you need the same advertising to tell new people your story?

Don't you want your business to march forward instead of backward?

Are you not taking too much for granted when your advertising does not appear in this newspaper.

The time to advertise is now.

Classified Advertisements.

RESULTS
SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

And in this respect, Republican classified ads. need no megaphone to make themselves heard.

For instance: This ad. appeared in this column last night:

WANTED—Bright, honest boy, about 16 years of age, for paper route. Apply at Gates.

It was ordered run until notified. We were "notified" last night about eight o'clock, only two hours after the last copies had left the press. One insertion did the work and secured the right party for the place.

Only another instance of the pulling power of Republican advertising.

FURTHER DELAY REPORTED IN SENDING U. S. NOTE

Protest Made Against British Interference with American Commerce.

By United Press. Washington, October 14.—Further delay in transmitting the note to Great Britain protesting against American commerce interference was indicated today by Secretary of State Lansing. No prediction was forthcoming when the note will go. It is still in President Wilson's hands.

British merchants are vigorously protesting carrying their fight to Parliament against the release of goods bought from Germans and Austria and held up at neutral ports, Trade Advisor Fleming of the state department said today.

Assurance has come from the British government, he said, that it will force to continue its policy despite the protest.
